lh5.1.rat.how.hdm.Effects of antisense oligodeoxynucleotide on the expression of nicotine acetylcholine receptor $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits in human airway epithelial cells. Genetic factors may explain the large inter-individual differences in response to nicotine. Previous studies have demonstrated the $\alpha 3$ - $\beta 4$ nicotinic acetylcholine receptor subunits as key proteins associated with this response. The present study aimed at (1) comparing the relative expression of $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits in normal and asthmatic airways and (2) determining the effects of treating normal and asthmatic airway epithelial cells with specific antisense oligonucleotides against the $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits. The levels of $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunit mRNA were assessed in normal and asthmatic human bronchial epithelial cells by reverse transcription-polymerase chain reaction (RT-PCR) using specific primers. Expression of the $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits in normal and asthmatic airway epithelial cells was also assessed by flow cytometry. Ten normal and 10 asthmatic human bronchial epithelial cells were treated with 5 μ mol antisense to $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits for 48 hr. The change in levels of $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits in the treated and untreated groups was determined by RT-PCR. The expression of both $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits was significantly reduced in the asthmatic human bronchial epithelial cells compared with the normal cells. The specific antisense to $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits treatment significantly inhibited the expression of $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ subunits in normal and asthmatic human bronchial epithelial cells. The expression of $\alpha 3$ and $\beta 4$ sub
